What is a Short Story? A short story is a form of literature which familiar to many people. It is a narrative that many read or heard during their childhood. Many adults usually tell or read a short story to entertain their kids or young children around them. The short story has a unique appeal which makes many people, even adults, hooked on them. It is a complete story with an apparent plot and characters and can be finished in one sitting. The famous American writer, Edgar Allan Poe, described short stories as literature that people can complete in half to two hours in one sitting. Based on contemporary fiction, a short story usually consists of 1,000 to 20,000 words. Different from a novel, with more than 40,000 words minimum, a short story is the compact version of a novel book. It focuses only on one main plot and consists of a few characters only. A short story is an appropriate medium for children to study, as it has a brief length, and many genres are suitable for them. It will help the kids to improve their linguistic and logical thinking skills. There are many types of short stories parents or teachers can introduce to the kids, such as fables, fairy tales, talltales, drabbles, anecdotes, or sketch stories. Why is Studying Short Story Important for the Second-Grade Students? Many people, from toddlers to adults, enjoy short stories. It is a suitable medium to spend time with light entertainment. Besides their function as a recreation, the short story has educational benefits for young students' growth. It will help them get familiar with the reading activity and will be the beginning of their literature journey. Through reading fiction stories, the kids will learn many kinds of moral values and character development which will affect their personality and behavior. Reading activities will also help the children recognize how to arrange a proper text, which improves their writing ability. The teachers and parents can also utilize short stories as the medium to teach many subjects, such as maths, English, science, and more. What are the Elements of Short Stories? Many children love to hear or read a short story in their time, especially if it has an appealing plot and piques their interest. This narrative literature can help young children develop many abilities and skills, primarily linguistic skill development. The parents or adults can guide the students to examine the short story as the starter of literature learning. Below are the elements of a short story based on the Writing Center of San Jose State University to help young students learn: Characters: Characters are the symbols or the doers in the story. They keep the plot to keep moving. Humans, animals, creatures, and objects can be characters in fiction literature. POV: POV stands for Point of View, which refers to the view the readers will see in the story. There are first, second, and third-person POVs in fiction. Dialogue: It is an interactive conversation between the characters in the story. Plot: Plot is the description of what happened in the story. It helps the writer to deliver their message and assists the readers in understanding the story. Place and Time Settings: These elements help the readers to know where and when the story takes place and time. How to Help Students Improving Their Short Story Writing? Writing is one of the four linguistic skills students should master, along with reading, listening, and speaking. It is an essential skill to help students in their academic journey. To help students improve their short story writing, use these tips. Reading a short story is one of the suitable starters to prepare for the writing journey for children. It will help the young kids recognize sentence patterns and how to arrange words correctly. The parents and teachers can guide the kids and as the place if they have questions to ask. Teach them about the main elements of writing such as grammar, vocabulary, spelling, sentence arrangement, structure, research and accuracy, clarity, and persuasiveness. How to Teach Second-Grade Students to Find The Main Idea of A Short Story? Recognizing the main idea of a short story paragraph is essential to understanding the message of a text. It helps the readers to grasp the point of what they read. Sometimes, the writer puts it at the beginning or end of the paragraph. However, the main idea is not consistently clearly written. So, how to teach 2nd grade students to find the main idea? Sometimes, the readers should look into the text to find the implied message from the writer. It can be the summary of some sentences in the paragraph or the drawn facts, hints, reasons, and examples. One tip for finding the main idea is to ask yourself about the 5W+1H (what, when, why, who, where, and how) in the paragraph or text. Use Second Grade Short Story Worksheet to help them understand a short story and how to find its main idea. How to Use Second-Grade Short Story Worksheets? Download PDF English Short Story for Grade 2 Here are a few short story suggestions that are suitable for 2nd graders: The Ant and the Grasshopper Once upon a time, there was a little ant who worked hard to gather food for winter. She stored the food in her home, but a grasshopper played all day and didn't prepare for the cold season. The ant warned the grasshopper, but he didn't listen. When winter came, the ant had enough food, but the grasshopper had none. The grasshopper was sad and asked the ant for help. The ant gave the grasshopper some food to survive. The grasshopper learned that it's important to work hard and prepare for the future. The Giving Tree Once upon a time, there was a beautiful tree in the forest. It was always happy and loved to provide shade and shelter for all the animals and birds. One day, a little boy came to play under the tree. The tree was so happy to have the boy around that it started giving him its apples to eat. As the boy grew older, he wanted more and more from the tree. The tree gave the boy its branches to build a house, its trunk to build a boat, and even its roots to make a swing. The tree was happy to see the boy happy, but it was becoming weaker and weaker with each passing day. Finally, the boy grew old and came back to the tree. The tree had nothing left to give but its stump. The boy sat on the stump and realized how much the tree had given him. He felt sad and regretful for taking so much from the tree. The boy learned an important lesson that day, that love and kindness should be shared, not taken for granted. The Lion and the Mouse Once upon a time, there was a mighty lion who lived in the forest. One day, he got caught in a hunter's trap and couldn't free himself. He roared and roared, but no one came to help. Just then, a tiny mouse heard the lion's cries and went to investigate. The mouse saw the lion trapped and knew he had to help. He gnawed and gnawed at the ropes until the lion was free. The lion was amazed that a small mouse could help him. He realized that even the smallest creatures can be helpful. The lion promised never to harm the mouse and said, "If you ever need help, I will be there for you." One day, the mouse was in trouble, and the lion heard its cries. The lion remembered his promise and ran to help the mouse. The mouse was grateful, and the lion learned that even the smallest creatures can have a big impact. The Tortoise and the Hare Once upon a time, there was a hare who loved to run fast. He boasted about his speed to all the animals in the forest. One day, he met a slow tortoise and challenged him to a race. The tortoise accepted the challenge, and the race began. The hare ran as fast as he could and soon became very tired. He decided to take a nap, thinking he had plenty of time to catch up with the tortoise. Meanwhile, the tortoise kept walking at a steady pace, never stopping or slowing down. When the hare woke up, he realized that the tortoise was almost at the finish line. The hare ran as fast as he could, but it was too late. The tortoise had won the race. The hare learned an important lesson that day, that slow and steady wins the race. The tortoise showed him that perseverance and determination are more important than speed and talent. The Three Little Pigs Once upon a time, there were three little pigs who wanted to build their own houses. The first pig built his house with straw, the second pig built his house with sticks, and the third pig built his house with bricks. One day, a big, bad wolf came to the first pig's house and said, "Little pig, little pig, let me in!" But the pig refused, and the wolf huffed and puffed and blew the house down. The second pig's house was next, and the wolf said, "Little pig, little pig, let me in!" But the pig also refused, and the wolf huffed and puffed and blew the house down. Finally, the wolf came to the third pig's house and said, "Little pig, little pig, let me in!" But the pig refused, and the wolf huffed and puffed and blew as hard as he could, but the house didn't fall down. The wolf realized that the third pig's house was built with bricks, and he couldn't blow it down. He tried to climb down the chimney, but the clever pig had a pot of boiling water waiting for him. The wolf learned an important lesson that day, that hard work and perseverance pay off. The three little pigs also learned that it's important to build strong and sturdy houses. The Boy Who Cried Wolf Once upon a time, there was a boy who lived in a village with his sheep. He was bored and wanted some excitement, so he started to play pranks on the villagers. One day, he ran to the village shouting, "Wolf! Wolf! There's a wolf attacking my sheep!" The villagers came running to help, but when they got there, they saw that there was no wolf. The boy laughed and thought it was funny. A few days later, the boy played the same prank again. This time, the villagers were getting annoyed because they had wasted their time and energy. They warned the boy that if he kept lying, no one would believe him when there really was a wolf. One day, a real wolf came and attacked the boy's sheep. The boy shouted for help, but no one came. The villagers thought it was another one of his pranks and ignored him. The boy learned an important lesson that day, that honesty is the best policy. The villagers also learned that it's important to trust and believe people when they tell the truth. The Ugly Duckling Once upon a time, there was an ugly duckling who was different from his siblings. He was teased and bullied because of his appearance, and he felt sad and lonely. One day, the ugly duckling decided to leave his family and go out on his own. He wandered through the woods, looking for a place where he belonged. As he grew older, he started to realize that he wasn't a duck at all. He was actually a beautiful swan. He had been different because he was meant to be different. The swan was overjoyed to discover who he really was, and he flew back to his old home to show his family. They were shocked at how beautiful he had become, and they welcomed him back with open arms. The swan learned an important lesson, that it's okay to be different and that everyone has their own unique qualities that make them special. The other ducks also learned an important lesson, that it's important to treat others with kindness and respect, no matter how different they may seem.
