Still early, but they have all these tools you can use to traverse the environment, like ladders, hooks, bridges etc. problem is, I haven't needed to use a single one. So far, can easily get to places without the need for them.Can easily get up that steep hill, or down it by holding L2/R2, or if there is a steep cliff that you may need a ladder, but then all you need to do is just walk about 15 metres and you find a easy way down. Crossing that river, why need a ladder, when you just hold L2/R2 while walking across it?Again, I am still early, but these tools seem optional so far, rather then mandatory. Environment seems very forgiving so far in not needing them. Hi allDoes anyone know when the DFAT 2026 Graduate Program is expected to open for applications?The register of interest expires 31 March so suspect it might be 1 April or thereabouts? Hey mate, I got an email to say that it is open now. Good luck! Having trouble getting my resume into their recommended resume format is everyone using this format/what are peoples opinions on altering it etc? I used their format, it's so they can parse the data more easily and don't need to open each individual one. You want to make it as easy as you can for the recruiter so just use their format IMO 4 weeks later. Has anyone received an email yet? +1 AC congratulations to everyone who made it this far, and commiserations to those who did not.Th I didn't think I'd make it this far. I'm a Comp Sci grad who just applied on a whim as the program seemed somewhat interesting to me. I'm going to prepare like crazy over the next few days however! @sugar7oaf what stream at DFAT is good for Comp Sci? Haven't applied but thinking of doing so next year +1 ACCongrats to everyone who made the AC phase. Curious if anyone has any insights/oh info about the written case study component this year? Will it be foreign policy-focused? Hi, haven't completed my WA yet, but based on (very limited) information online I would expect the assessment to be foreign policy focused, they are trying to test core competency for the role. Not a guarantee but this is my primary study focus. Hi @justhappy2 where is it timed the email says you get 40 mins thanks for the clarification @QweeDWina the email states: "You will need to allow approximately 40 minutes to complete this task" hence the reason for my question When did they say we'd hear the outcome after the AC? Wow that was a nervous 40 mins hahaha. Do we all get the same topic or do they vary amongst us? All really lacking confidence in my submission I wouldnt be too hard on yourself. I think they will be analysing our ability to choose key information etc. rather than the structure of the task etc. because technically the actual task style is something that should make up a component of training within the program. Did anyone else have people who completely railroaded and dominated their assessment centres and you were barely able to get a word in or was it just me? Lol Did anyone else have people who completely railroaded and dominated their assessment centres and you were barely able to get a word in or was it just me? LolSorry to hear that happened, hope you still managed to contribute as best as you could.For what its worth I dont think dominating the discussion like that and preventing others from speaking is looked upon favourably. I think most people realise this so I would hope its not a regular occurrence. Yes lol agreed because louder/compulsive people are more likely to be heard. Iirc it's your usual situational skills assessment and some personality tests, it seems very short compared to other OAs ive had to do! Got mine on Friday too. I nervous but I will give it a go now. For those attempting, my GF who is in HR recruitment says these tests aren't about standing out, but rather not making mistakes. Anyone whose done the assessment yet have any advice? And it's only got 2 sections on it right that seems a bit nicer and shorter than the others. Please correct me if I'm wrong but there's no logical reasoning, right? no logical reasoning (thank goodness)! The questions are more related to your personality and workstyle :) Just completed the OA. Agree with the others no logical reasoning, just a mix of personality and situational judgement style questions. I think the key is not to overthink it. Good luck :) I would also add, read carefully. It says to take 30 mins but I took an hour. I reread every question before I answered. Agreed. The personality questions were fairly straightforward, although I honestly found some of the situational judgement questions quite challenging. Also took me a bit longer to complete than expected, but oh well. Onwards and upwards! Hi all +1 OA as well. When do you reckon we'll get a response, considering that today is the deadline? From last years thread, it looks like people started hearing back about a week after the OA closed. Hopefully we will find out soon. Sounds good. I'm not applying to this program, but it's good that they don't take too long. Has anyone heard back yet? (I haven't!) +1 Video Interview. Any tips? + VI. Good luck everyone! + 1 rejection, good luck to those who made it :) +VI! My tip is to pretend you're facetimeing your bestie :D + 1 rejection. Congrats to those who made it! + 1 VIGood luck everyone :)) + 1 VIGood luck to those who have done the VI can you let us know how it went and what kind of question to expect? GL all +1 VI!To those who have done it, any advice? :) Can anyone remember if the first question was a practice and non assessed or if they were both assessed? got rejected after the psychometric testing and struggling to tell where I may have gone wrong? those who got a VI, any tips for me for next time? You cant really go wrong with psychometric testing since theyre designed to measure how you think under pressure, your reasoning skills, and how well your personality aligns with the role and organisational culture. But I get how frustrating it can be when its not clear what theyre looking for, especially since we dont get structured feedback. You could try tailoring your answers next time based on what you think the department wants but thats not always genuine or a guarantee. At the end of the day, the right fit goes both ways. You should put your details on the temporary employment register on the careers page. The graduate program might be the most competitive pathway into the department, but its far from the only pathway. People get in through all sorts of side doors; secondments, temp contracts etc. If you're serious about DFAT, staying engaged with international affairs, sharpening your strategic thinking, and applying through multiple avenues will always work in your favour :) I absolutely hated the VI. I can do panels all day but something about staring at myself really threw me. I also absolutely overprepared trying to anticipate the question and absolutely bombed it. Didn't even finish the 3 minutes!!Goodluck everyone. Judging by previous threads we won't find out until June... I totally fumbled mine. I feel the same way about watching myself back and that countdown is inherently nerve-wracking! Im just hoping that each stage isnt judged solely on its own, and that theyre looking at everything together; CVs, experience, OA test comparability all of it. Otherwise, theres no way Im making it to the next round hahaha. Hoping so. Otherwise oh well. Always next year! More and more agencies seem to be using VI as a screening filter, which I'd like to believe is solely to check if you can string together some words and as a real human check. Based on last years thread, we may find out today or tomorrow about next steps. HOPEFULLY Still waiting, looks like last year was 6pm on a Thursday for news, so who knows GL everyone! I guess not this week. hopefully VI + ACCongrats to everyone who made it this far! +1 Rejection Good luck, everyone! An incredible achievement to make it this far, remy11! Please, please, please, put your details into the temporary registers!! These are also great ways into departments :) +1 AC congrats to the others who have made it! + 1 RejectionDamm fumbled the VI so badly :(Though GL to all the others who made through!!!! +1 ACCongratulations to everyone who made it this far, and commiserations to those who did not.Th I didn't think I'd make it this far. By the way for those curious you can change battery settings to show percentage figure in settings, on any switch. I think to be fair, the upside to the OLED is you get long battery life, OLED screen, smaller size, choice of Joy-con colours, with the Switch 2, you also get a great screen, big upgrade in computing power, meaning more third party support. I imagine a very solid well built feel as well.Looking ahead. If they can add OLED, make it a bit smaller, improve battery, you'd have the perfect mainstream portable unit, that's ahead of the other major rivals, accept Steamdeck which rides alongside, but isn't available in Australia. So the Switch goes ahead even more in terms of portable gaming. The fascinating part of this, is the choice of Sony and Microsoft to not have a portable unit. Unless you count the Portal of course. Excluding the $5 rise from July 1 for the annual increases!Now $90 a month for 500/50 increased from 100/20."Great news your Xetel internet plan is getting a FREE speed upgrade to 500/50 Mbps from midnight, Sun 14 Sept! A short outage (up to 10 mins) may occur during the upgrade. No action needed just enjoy the faster speeds! Team Xetel! I got the same message. Was hoping that it's not a free upgrade that will increase 6 months down the track. Just got the same message. 1000/100 included as well.Perfect. Xetel's current 100/20 is $95(Sorry I missed the 1st July increase) Also got the same message (up from 100/20 to 500/50 on RFP>Last bill was $80 but I see talk of price rises? Either way if I'm ~$90 for 500/50 I'll be thrilled. Seems too good to be true!Also seems a little odd that they'd flag it almost 3 months in advance? Maybe they've had a recent loss of customers? Got the notification today also. Not sure that I need the higher speeds. I'm on the 100/40 plan and just got an email saying I'm being moved to the 500/50 plan as well, does that mean I'm gonna be on the same plan but paying more? Crucius writes...I'm gonna be on the same plan but paying more?From above the above posters, it does say "FREE Upgrade" in the email I believe, so it should be at no extra cost. Oh, I should have been clearer. I meant paying more than those who were on the 100/20 plan. We both end up on the 500/50 plan, paying what we were before the upgrade, but since I was initially paying more, I end up paying more than them for the same speeds. And you think they will still offer free speed boosts after the speed upgrade in September? ruxp writes...Grandfathered plan from a while ago, I believe it is not possible to obtain anymore given Xetel has exited the high end market. There was a thread about joining the 1000Mbps plan here a while ago, it had mixed results. The method is to call Retention Team and discuss. Im on a grandfathered plan (500/50 for $109) as I found that speed performed better for the amount of teleconference work I was doing.Now I've lost it, I will probably just drop back to 100/20 sometime in July or August and let them adjust me back up when the upgrades take place. Does moving from Xetel to Superloop require the 30 days notice if they are basically the same company?Yves, I was thinking on moving to a different provider after the price for 100t went over $90. This might make me stay just that little longer till all the other providers update their plans with the new plans. My only real question would be the speedboost would go to, or will they cancel that?
