You might stan sports bars and cocktail lounges. But after a long week at work, losing yourself on the dance floor is exactly what the doctor ordered.This weekend, gather under the disco ball with a drink in hand. Primed with impressive DJ sets and trippy LED lights, these are thebest clubs in Singapore for you to beat work stress and unleash your inner Michael Jackson. First up, smoking is not allowed in all places of entertainment in Singapore, including discotheques and nightclubs, except at the approved smoking corners.While drinks in the clubs might be pricey, you cant bring your own alcohol in to save money. Bouncers stationed at the club entrance will conduct bag checks to examine if youre bringing booze into the clubs, so dont attempt to sneak any in your water bottles. Needless to say, this also applies to food.Clubbing is when you and your friends can dress to the nines, but remember to check the clubs dress code. Some clubs, such as Marquee, follow a stricter smart casual dress code. For reference, this means that guys have to wear a collared shirt, and ladies arent allowed to wear slippers. 1. Marquee EDM megaclub with famous international DJs Ask anyone around town about nightclubs, and chances are theyll tell you about Marquee a Singapore staple where some of the countrys richest people blow thousands of dollars every weekend.Their monthly lineup used to feature A-listers such as Tyga and Martin Garrix.After opening in 2019, this bi-level mega-club quickly became the place to be for those who like electronic music and famous DJs. Tiesto used to spin semi-regular sets and Zedd stopped by when he wasnt busy in Vegas. Not to mention, Steve Aoki has thrown cakes twice from the booth.Technology is almost as big an attraction as the eclectic DJ lineup. The space is designed with your Instagram in mind with a slide, a ferris wheel and an 8K screen that delivers the realiest visuals. Needless to say, Marquee dominates Singapores nightlife scene with bottle service, an all-star lineup, heart-thumping beats, and a posh crowd. 2. Avenue Intimate lounge with weekly Afrobeats night If you find yourself outside of Marquee but EDM isnt your cup of tea, its not too late to take a short walk to Avenue. Also located inside Marina Bay Sands and run by the same entertainment group, Avenue is the place to be for those whod rather sway and bend knees to the beats of hip-hop and R&B. Image credit: @avenuesingapore via InstagramHere, expect to find games like 2 mini bowling alleys, a pool table, as well as old-school arcade stations like pinball and skee-ball. The dance floor might seem smaller than most clubs in Singapore. But if you have a table or are invited to one, feel free to clamber onto the sofa and twerk away.Theyve just launched an Afrobeats, Reggaeton, and Afro Latina-themed event every Thursday. Its called Vibe, and it certainly gives fans of these deep-bassline genres something to celebrate and get into a pre-TGIF mood. 3. Drip Berlin-inspired underground club Multiple dance floors, kitschy decor, and heart-thumping beats are what youll find at Drip.Located in the basement of the Concord Hotel & Shopping Mall, the club came through dripping in funky artwork, sculptures, and HDB-inspired dance podiums. LED-lit panels line the walls and old-school chess tiles cover the ceiling too, so its a photo op at every corner.As for the music, Drip offers underground house and EDM in the main Drip Room, but often spices things up with some hip hop and top 40 hits in the Salt Room. 4. Zouk Multi-room venue playing different genres When it comes to nightclubs, Zouk is always a safe bet. It has 3 sections dedicated to different types of music. While Phuture blasts mostly Hip Hop and R&B, Capital serves up old school Pop, House, and Electronic. Zouk, on the other hand, is the main area where international guest DJs spin the decks. Genres include a range of Hip Hop, EDM, and Techno.Image credit: @bryner_colossal via InstagramThis weekend, take it to the dance floor, bounce from room to room, and fist-pump your night away. 5. Tuff Club Underground electronic club Image credit: @thugshop66 via InstagramOG clubbers will know Tuff Club as the place to go for electronic music. It used to be a pop-up nightclub, but has since found a permanent home in Oxley Tower. Their list of international guest DJs are poppin, with names including German DJ Rey&KjaviK, French DJ CARAVEL, and London-based DJ Dax J. 6. ARK11 Spaceship-themed club in Orchard ARK11 takes the cake with its creative sci-fi decorations and robot-helmed bar. Located in Orchardgateway, this futuristic club is probably the closest experience to what partying in 2050 might be. And yes, that is indeed a giant mechanical heart sculpture right next to the bar, beating along to the EDM tunes by both international and local DJs. 7. PULSE Hidden club in Clarke Quay Image credit: @pulselivsg via Instagram Theres more to Clarke Quay than just dive bars, Zouk, and Haidilao. Theres also the buzzing PULSE, formerly known as Yang, where you can grind to the beats of your favourite K-Pop tunes and Top 40 hits performed by live bands. 8. CE LA VI Rooftop lounge at MBS CE LA VI might be a little smaller than other clubs, but that only adds to the energy and atmosphere at this ultra-modern rooftop lounge.Image credit: @celavingsingapore via InstagramBetween Sam Smith and David Beckham, its clear that this poshy lounge is where international A-listers used to frequent and where you can camp out to get a pic or 2 with celebrities. DJs spun a mix of new wave Electronic, oldie Hip Hop and down-and-dirty RnB, while the crowd sipped on drinks and admired the panoramas of the city skyline 57 floors above the ground. 9. Cherry Discotheque Affordable drinks in CBD Dont let anyone tell you there arent any good late-night spots in the CBD. Tucked away on Cecil Street, Cherry Discotheque is lit until 3am most night. Here, youll be able to catch live DJs, groove to the beats of Top 40 jams, and order cheap alcohol with a side of fried popcorn chicken.Image credit: @sunnydelacruz via InstagramUnless you have a table reservation, youll be waiting in line with gaggles of girls singing to 50 Cents classics. Judging from the look of the younger crowd in sneakers and shorts previously, its safe to assume Cherry Discotheque is a stomping ground for the newly legal undergraduates.But that doesnt mean you shouldnt swing by for some reasonably priced drinks, 90s Hip Hop and Reggaeton. 10. Headquarters By The Council Underground Techno & House For a grungy dungeon-like club with some of the best Deep House and Techno tunes, make your way to Headquarters By The Council. Image credit: @headquarters.sg via InstagramThere are no flashy dancers, trains of champagne and bottle services here. Once you descend the staircase into this underground space, youll be greeted by a rave crowd who passionately sways to the throbbing tech-house tracks spun by a lineup of both established local and international DJs.If you need to give your ears and eyes a break, head to the upstairs space for some fresh air, chill vibes and sizzling hot wings.Address: 66 Boat Quay, Singapore 049854Opening hours: Wed-Fri 10:30am-3am | Sat 10:30am-4am (Closed from Sundays to Tuesdays)Contact: 9667 9424 11. XclusiV Fun themed nights Themed parties at the clubs are usually reserved for Halloween or Valentines. But hit XclusiV, formerly known as PRISM, on the right weekend, and youre likely to find patrons in costumes dropping it low on the dance floor.Image credit: @xclusiv_singapore via InstagramThe sounds over here are heavy on HipHop and Top40, with the occasional big-name artists like Kid Ink making an appearance. Every Wednesday night, ladies get free manicures, tarot reading, and chocolate served by shirtless waiters. (Closed) Luxe Club Occupying the space that Bang Bang used to be, Luxe Club is lit till 4am on most nights.The 4,000sqft swanky space is the kind of place youll see in music videos. Theres an illuminated entry tunnel, a kinetic light art installation, and a giant bar near the entrance. Local acts like Sound Of Fai spin a wide variety of tunes here, ranging from 2000s top hits and latest EDM to dance and dirty house beats. (Closed) Conversion Clinic Well cut to the chase here: theres no conversion clinic on Neil Road. What you might have walked past or seen floating on social media is a club where the LGBTQ crowd comes to play.Image credit: District Singapore FacebookOnce you get past the initial shock by The Clinics front, proceed to the back where quirky graffiti wall arts, drag shows, and stiff drinks await. The raucous party at The Clinic only kickstarts around 11pm so, by all means, stay. Tips for clubbing in Singapore We had no problems forking out big bucks to cover our clubbing expenses back then and we certainly wont now. However, there are a few things you can do to save some money and still do it big. 1. Pregame prior to going out Whether youre heading to a lowkey bar in Clarke Quay or the swanky rooftop of Marina Bay Sands, a night of paying for booze might burn a hole in your back pocket. Well, heres a solution: pre-drink at home.Buy your party a bottle of vodka, tequila, gin whatever you like and bottoms up prior to going out. Not only will it give you a good buzz, itll also hopefully reduce the number of drinks youre planning to order. Just make sure you wont overdo it and get wasted before even reaching the club.To get the party started, heres a list of all the affordable alcohol shops so you can stock up on bottles. 2. Plan trip home in advance A trip home from the club can be a pricey one, somewhere between $20-$30 or more due to the after-hours surcharge. Since youd rather spend that money on another round of shots at the bar, you might want to consider pre-planning your ride home. There are a few options: have a designated driver AKA a sober sister in your group who doesnt drink but still wants to join the party to drop you off at home; book a Grab Hitch in advance; or wait for public transportation to resume at 5.30am. However, the latter might require some serious willpower and a lot of energy drinks 3. Befriend the doorman for free entry Were no longer in the early 2000s, so dont be surprised if there are no complimentary guest lists or free drinks for ladies. However, that doesnt mean you cant try to weasel your way in without paying.When it comes to clubbing, if you can afford to make it rain on expensive bottles, youll need to make friends with the right people in order to get freebies. Think club managers, bouncers and door hosts or hostesses. These are the people who have the power to let you cut the line, skip the cover charge and waltz in even when the club has allegedly hit its capacity.They also have something called drink tickets which can get you comfortably drunk at no extra cost. As the saying goes, its not about what you know, its about who you know that matters. Plan a night out at the best clubs in Singapore Whether youre a homebody or a party animal, youll probably want to blow off some steam and check out the nightlife scene in Singapore. If thats the case, bookmark these venues and mark your calendar.Then, round up your squad, book a table, sort out your tickets and have a good time. You deserve it.For more Singapore nightlife features: Cover image adapted from: @sunnydelacruz, District SingaporeLast updated by Joycelyn Yeow and Shannon Lee on 24th September 2024.Access a mix of Barre and Yoga classes through our Active Pass.
