

Click Here

Absolutely. For the no-cost version of Google Meet, participants can either sign in with a Google Account or be approved by the meeting organizer to join. For Google Workspace customers, once you've created a meeting, you can invite anyone to join even if they don't have a Google Account. Just share the link or meeting ID with all meeting participants. Anyone with a Google Account can create a video meeting, invite up to 100 participants, and meet for up to 60 minutes per meeting at no cost. For mobile calls and 1:1s, there's no time limit. For longer, larger meetings or additional features such as international dial-in numbers, meeting recording, live streaming, and administrative controls, see plans and pricing for organizations or Google Workspace Individual. Premium features are available in our Google Workspace plans and in Google One Premium. Yes, all video and audio streams in Meet are encrypted. Users can join securely even when they're off site. No. With Google Workspace's Enterprise edition, you have the ability to include a phone number and PIN on each of your meetings with no other configuration required. Check the dial-in documentation for further details. Google Meet supports a variety of hardware from leading manufacturers to bring great video conferencing experiences to your meeting rooms. Our comprehensive portfolio offers both first-party and third-party Google Meet-certified hardware, with a device for every room, use case, and budget. Additionally, you can join Cisco Webex and Zoom meetings from Google Meet hardware devices using built-in interoperability. Browse tips and step-by-step guides made for both new users and power users. Help center ¡Por supuesto que sí! Para disfrutar de la versión sin coste de Google Meet, los participantes pueden iniciar sesión con una cuenta de Google o unirse a una reunión tras recibir la aprobación de la persona que la organizó. En el caso de los clientes de Google Workspace, una vez creada una reunión, pueden invitar a cualquier persona a unirse sin necesidad de que tenga una cuenta de Google. Basta con compartir el enlace o ID de reunión con todos los participantes. Cualquier persona con una cuenta de Google puede crear una videollamada, invitar a hasta 100 participantes y hacer reuniones de un máximo de 60 minutos sin coste. Las llamadas individuales y desde móviles no están sujetas a ningún límite de tiempo. En el caso de las reuniones más prolongadas o las funciones adicionales (como los números de acceso internacionales, las funciones de grabación de reuniones y de emisión en directo, y los controles administrativos), consulta los planes y precios para organizaciones o el plan Google Workspace Individual. Las funciones premium están disponibles en nuestros planes de Google Workspace y en el plan Premium de Google One. Sí. Todos los streams de vídeo y audio en Meet están cifrados. Los usuarios pueden unirse de forma segura aun cuando no estén en la misma ubicación. No, con la edición Enterprise de Google Workspace, puedes incluir un número de teléfono y un PIN a cualquier reunión sin tener que configurar nada. Consulta la documentación sobre llamadas para obtener más información. Google Meet admite diversos tipos de hardware de los principales fabricantes para ofrecerte experiencias de videoconferencia de calidad en tus salas de reuniones. Nuestra exhaustiva cartera ofrece hardware, tanto propio como de terceros, certificado por Google Meet y con un dispositivo para cada sala, caso práctico y presupuesto. Además, puedes unirte a reuniones de Cisco Webex y Zoom desde los dispositivos de hardware de Google Meet gracias a su interoperabilidad integrada. Consulta consejos y guías paso a paso destinados a usuarios nuevos y avanzados. Centro de Ayuda Absolutely. For the no-cost version of Google Meet, participants can either sign in with a Google Account or be approved by the meeting organizer to join. For Google Workspace customers, once you've created a meeting, you can invite anyone to join even if they don't have a Google Account. Just share the link or meeting ID with all meeting participants. Anyone with a Google Account can create a video meeting, invite up to 100 participants, and meet for up to 60 minutes per meeting at no cost. For mobile calls and 1:1s, there's no time limit. For longer, larger meetings or additional features such as international dial-in numbers, meeting recording, live streaming, and administrative controls, see plans and pricing for organizations or Google Workspace Individual. Premium features are available in our Google Workspace plans and in Google One Premium. Yes, all video and audio streams in Meet are encrypted. Users can join securely even when they're off site. No. With Google Workspace's Enterprise edition, you have the ability to include a phone number and PIN on each of your meetings with no other configuration required. Check the dial-in documentation for further details. Google Meet supports a variety of hardware from leading manufacturers to bring great video conferencing experiences to your meeting rooms. Our comprehensive portfolio offers both first-party and third-party Google Meet-certified hardware, with a device for every room, use case, and budget. Additionally, you can join Cisco Webex and Zoom meetings from Google Meet hardware devices using built-in interoperability. Browse tips and step-by-step guides made for both new users and power users. Help center